

OFFICIAL LAXITY HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR AALA KILLING

Local Officers Have Failed To Carry Out Their Sworn Duty, Vigilance Corps Is Told

CODDLING OF HUNS SEVERELY CENSURED

Captain Allen, Slayer of Walker, Released On Bond Though Charged With Murder

"Local officials have failed to carry out their sworn duty. If they continue their laxity there will be more murders unless every Hun and I. W. W. is placed behind barbed wire."

This is the view expressed yesterday by J. A. Balch and endorsed by other members of the Hawaiian Vigilance Corps at its meeting yesterday when the shooting of S. J. Walker by "Captain" Henry Allen was discussed. "I ascribe the murder to the negligence of congress, of the attorney general, and of our own local federal district attorney's office and this will not be the last shooting of alien enemies. There will be more if an internment camp is not provided here for men of this kind," Balch added.

"The officers of the law will not protect private citizens must. This is apparently what the Vigilance Corps has come to believe."

It was related at the meeting that for weeks Walker prated of his pro-German sympathies, voiced hatred of the Stars and Stripes, sneered at and cursed the American soldiers. It was charged that he is not an isolated case and those who have come forward in Allen's defense refer to a series of incidents in which individuals have shown themselves to be disloyal by words and acts here and on other islands. It is pointed out that these things have all been reported in one way or another to officials charged with enforcing laws enacted to meet cases of the kind.

"What happened?" one man asked yesterday, and then gave the answer. "Nothing, just nothing. All the way from Washington to Honolulu they seem to think these traitors are harmless." It is no wonder a loyal private citizen reaches the point that he feels there is nothing left for him to do but take the law into his own hands.

Quickly Gets Ball
Murder in the first degree, the charge necessarily laid against Captain Allen, ordinarily is regarded as an unbalancing offense. It may not be doubted that public sentiment expressed on all sides yesterday, enabled "Captain" Allen to preserve before a great admiring throng last night in his little soft drink stand at Aala Park before which Sunday night he killed his man.

"That is an indictment of our officials," said a man who stood watching the crowd about the stand.

After "Captain" Allen's bond in the sum of $5000 had been signed yesterday by Fred L. Waldron and E. P. Fogarty, Allen, who is a man of fifty, entered the office of Liquor License Inspector W. H. Hutton who has known him for years. He quoted this little verse to Hutton:

"Then burst your bars asunder,
And let this prisoner free,
That he may sing those hymns of praise,
Those songs of liberty."

Wins Sympathy
The first shock that the community felt over the tragedy speedily grew into a wave of sympathy for the slayer when "Captain" Allen's acts of patriotism and his unflinching loyalty were recalled and brought into comparison with the acts and words of the man he killed.

Out of the store of knowledge he gained in the fifteen years he served in the American navy, "Captain" Allen has been giving instructions to the Boy Scouts, implanting in the youth of all the varied races that make up the Boy Scout organization his own old-fashioned notions of patriotism. The illustration that accompanies the article is a picture taken some months ago in the grounds of the Capitol building at a time when "Captain" Allen was teaching Troop IV how they tied knots in the navy and how a life line should be handled. Before the war he might have been regarded as a harmless old gentleman who talked too much about the flag and about one's duty to his country. His habit of raising his naval standard every day over his little soft drink stand then might have been looked upon as a fable. In recent years his words and acts have taken on a different meaning, however.

I. W. W. Member
Walker has been characterized as a fair sample of anarchist and this summing up of his character seems to be borne out by the papers the police unearthed among his effects. One outgrowth of the tragedy that may have its value is that it has been learned that the Industrial Workers of the World, whose activities paralyzed industry in Australia, and whose efforts shut down the great shipbuilding yards at San Francisco and Seattle at a time when ships were the most urgent need of the Nation, are organized here in Honolulu. Walker, his papers show, was a member of the I. W. W. in good standing.

All of two months ago Walker was openly expressing his pro-German sentiments on the streets to chance comers. Fire Chief C. H. Thurston tells of an encounter he had with Walker, whom he had known for years. Thurston asked him jokingly when he would be going over to fight.

"Fight for whom?" Walker is reported to have answered, "If I'd fight for anybody, it would be for the Germans," he went on aggressively.

From this he is reported to have gone on with tirades of abuse directed against the American soldiers, refer-

Honolulu's Sister In Jail Facing Trial for Piracy

Maude Lochrane and Germans Captured On Raider Agassiz Held On Grave Charge—F. C. Wheeler Sails For California Today

Piracy is expected to be the charge upon which Miss Maude Lochrane, joint owner of the auxiliary schooner Alexander Agassiz with F. C. Wheeler, her adopted brother, of Honolulu, will be tried by the federal authorities in California, according to Coast newspapers.

The same charge is to be lodged against the five Germans captured on the vessel after it was run down by an American gunboat, according to advices from the mainland.

Honolulu Owner To Leave

The Honolulu part owner of the auxiliary schooner, which was outfitted and taken to sea as a German raider, is to leave for San Francisco on the Columbia this morning, on his way to Los Angeles to try to save his interest from confiscation by the government.

San Diego reports say that it is believed the government will confiscate the schooner and sell it on auction. The five Germans and the woman owner of the vessel are held in jail at Los Angeles, where they were taken after a hearing was given them in San Diego.

Hold Prize Court Hearing

On April 3, the San Diego Union gave the following report of this hearing: "Prize court proceedings against Miss Lochrane and the German prisoners of war were completed yesterday noon. The depositions of the prisoners will be turned over to United States Commissioner Hammack at Los Angeles, who will determine whether the evidence justifies the trial of the woman, and the German sailors on the charge of piracy."

"The commanding officer and paymaster of the American warship that captured the Agassiz off Mazatlan on the afternoon of March 17 testified before the prize court during the morning session yesterday. The naval officers contradicted much of the evidence given by the Germans, the latter insisting that nothing was thrown overboard from the Agassiz prior to the time the American bluejackets boarded the raider."

"It is believed that Robert O'Connor, United States district attorney, who is prosecuting the case for the government, will ask that Miss Lochrane and the Germans be held for trial on a charge of piracy. District Attorney O'Connor left last night for Los Angeles with the evidence adduced at the prize court proceedings here. He will hold a conference with United States Commissioner Hammack today. Federal officials believe that the government will confiscate the Alexander Agassiz and sell the craft at public auction."

LITTLE JAPANESE BOY KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Jumped Off Wagon In Front of Car, Says Driver

Kami Masanori, a Japanese boy, twelve years of age, was killed at Fort and Kukui Streets last night at five o'clock when an automobile, driven by "Imeon Evangelista struck the lad. The latter jumped off the rear end of an express wagon, upon which he had been riding.

According to the police the Masanori had jumped on the wagon at the upper end of Fort Street. When he arrived opposite the Japanese School at Kukui and Fort Streets, he jumped off and ran directly in front of the auto, driven by Evangelista. According to the driver, the car was going at the rate of ten miles an hour when the accident occurred and was just about to pass the express wagon when the Japanese lad jumped off.

Evangelista brought his automobile to a stop, placed the lad in the car and rushed him to the Queen's Hospital where he died shortly after. Police investigation showed that the driver was blameless and was released to appear at an inquest to be held over the remains today.

City Attorney A. M. Brown said yesterday that he would present Allen's case to the grand jury at its session Friday, intimating that he would draw an indictment in accordance with the nature of the offense, which would be murder in the first degree.

RAIN CUT SHORT KAM CADETS TRIP TO MAUI

The heavy and continued rains spoiled the plans of the Kamehameha cadets for a week's camping on Haleakala, says last Friday's Maui News of Wailuku. The boys left Wailuku on Tuesday on trucks in a heavy downpour and after struggling with their baggage and equipment most of the day through heavy mud, getting stuck numerous times, finally gave up and turned back to Paia. The party camped in the Paia armory Tuesday night, and it was finally decided to cut short the trip on account of the bad weather and return to Honolulu by Wednesday's steamer.

When this decision was made, it was found that some thirty of the 110 cadets were sightseeing, and it being impossible to locate them, they were left behind in charge of Instructor E. G. Bartlett and M. E. Crossman. They will take the steamer tomorrow evening.

SUPERINTENDENT RETURNING

If W. K. Kamehameha, superintendent of territorial schools, who has been in California for the past few weeks on a tour of duty to attend to the affairs of the Hawaiian Educational Board, is expected to return to Honolulu in the steamer which is due to arrive here next Monday from San Francisco.

HAWAII SCHOOLS DOING THEIR SHARE OF BUYING

Seventy-nine different schools of the department of public instruction have reported to the headquarters office here that pupils have purchased to date $53,736 worth of United States securities, including Liberty Bonds, Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.

War Savings Stamps to the amount of $5444, Thrift Stamps amounting to $9792, and Liberty Bonds, $38,500, make up the total of $53,736.

School Notes

In the neighborhood of three hundred applications for positions as teachers in the government schools of Hawaii have been received the past two weeks at the office of the territorial board of education.

A meeting of the school commissioners will be held the latter part of next month, when appointments for the new school year, which begins in September, will be made.

The federal survey of the government schools in Hawaii, ordered by the legislature in April of last year, is being delayed owing to the inability of the U. S. education, United States commissioner of schools, to come here to conduct the work, said W. C. Avery, superintendent of the local board of education, discussing the subject yesterday. War and other duties have piled work in the office of the national commissioner to such an extent that he may not be able to get away before the fall.

MAUI SCHOOL NOTES

J. Halemano is acting principal at Kamehameha School.

Joseph Souza is the new principal at Pukouli School. He taught at Kamehameha 111 School, Lahaina.

The foil collected and given to the Red Cross last week was as follows: Wailuku School, one pound; Makawao, 3.33 pounds; Kula, 14.5 pounds (donated); Lahaina, one quarter of a pound; Wailuku, one-half pound; Kamehameha 111, 1.25 pounds.

The reports of enrollment for the five districts of Maui as of March 29 are as follows: Makawao, 1771 pupils; Wailuku, 1629; Lahaina, 855; Hana, 486; Molokai, 237. A total for the whole county of 4983 pupils. This does not include the Maui High and private schools.

Miss Elizabeth Ladden, teacher of the Kamehameha School, Molokai, spent the recent Easter school vacation in Honolulu. She has returned to her duties.

GERMAN MUST KISS FLAG OR BE FIRED

Hilo Alien Who Showed Disrespect For National Emblem May Lose His Job Anyway

Gettlieb Kruck, a machinist, and an alien enemy who has been working at the Hilo Iron Works hasn't got any more job than a rabbit unless he kisses the flag that he has scorned. That much is certain, says the Post-Herald of April 13. Even should he salute the Stars and Stripes under compulsion it is more than likely that he will be sent to his countrymen in the detention camp at Maui.

Back of this is a story of vibrant Americanism among the workers employed by the big local plant, and their flat refusal to "work with any Hun any longer than is necessary." Incidentally the policy of the management of the Iron Works and the feelings of the employees run hand in hand.

It all started many months ago, about the time the United States threw herself into the war against the Hun. Kruck, who had been working at the Hilo Iron Works, and it came to a crisis last Saturday morning when, with a contentment wave of his hand Kruck refused to stand at attention in honor of Old Glory, and as a salute to the cause of the United States. It is true that he did not have the nerve to come out straight and declare himself but he had been overtaken with a sudden illness, "something" the matter with my throat," he told the foreman, Mr. Shepherd, "and I got to go home and lie down."

This was shortly before nine o'clock, and Mr. Shepherd, unsuspecting at the time, merely remarked, "You don't look sick to me, but if you don't feel well, finish this bit of work you have in hand and then you can go."

Shakes Fist at Flag
Kruck hurried through his assigned task and at ten minutes to ten o'clock hurriedly left the shops. One of the employees of the works, D. A. White, saw him hastening toward a taxi, and called to him, pointing at the time to the folds of the flag flying above the plant. It was then that Kruck gave himself away. With a contemptuous gesture, Kruck shook his fist at the flag, climbed into the taxi and disappeared.

Then the wrath of the plant broke out. It got worse later in the day when Ahin Ah Fook, timekeeper for the office, saw Kruck up town, "all dolled up," and it reached its climax when certain remarks of the German came to the ears of his former fellow workers. "I fooled them good down there," he is reported to have said, "I played sick for I wouldn't salute their d—d old flag."

But not knowing what the manager had in mind the employees of the Iron Works took a different stand. In a letter to Mr. Russell they quietly stated upon "the immediate dismissal of Kruck," on the ground that "we are loyal American citizens and do not wish to continue working with an alien enemy."

That's where the matter stands this afternoon. Kruck has not been back to the plant to get his money, nor have the employees of the concern had a chance to show him by words and deeds just what they think of the support of the Kaiserband. They are just waiting.

HILO HIGH SAVES TO AID WAR FUND

Teachers and Students Have Already Invested $5029.50 in Government Securities

A vigorous society has been formed this week at the Hilo High School called the Hilo High School War Savings Club, says the Hilo Tribune of last Thursday.

The object of this club is to stimulate the saving of money with which to buy War Savings and Thrift Stamps. Up to date 119 students and eight teachers have joined and it is believed that every teacher and student will join within a few days.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Marilyn Forbes; vice president, Gilbert Patton; secretary, Myron Igasaki; assistant secretary, Mary Pat; auditor, Albert Afook.

From the signed statements of the members it develops that the teachers and students of the High School now own $3800 in Liberty Bonds, $1172.60 in War Savings Stamps, and fifty dollars and ninety cents in Thrift Stamps. The members have obligated themselves to try to buy this month from savings $219.81 in War Savings Stamps and $167.05 in Thrift Stamps. Of the total sum of $5029.50 in War obligations of the United States Government held by the High School, the greater portion is owned by the students.

Monthly reports will be made by the auditing committee, showing the savings of the members during the month and the membership committee will promote membership in the club among the students in every way.

WILL CLOSE GERMAN SCHOOL IF ORDERED

In a statement made to George E. Carter recently, Mrs. Dora Isenberg, patroness of the German School on Kamehameha, said that she would close the institution if so ordered by the authorities. Mrs. Isenberg says that if she closed the school voluntarily it would be an admission on her part that she had been doing something unlawful.

Mr. Carter recently made an investigation of the school and will file a report of his findings with Superintendent of Schools Kinney.

EIGHTH GRADERS AT ST. LOUIS LITTLE PATRIOTS

Brother Lawrence's eighth grade class at St. Louis College has set an example to the institution which will be a difficult one for other classes to follow, although these are striving manfully to equal the record established by the eighth. Since the Thrift Stamp campaign began at the college five weeks ago the members of the eighth grade class have subscribed for $800 worth of Liberty Bonds and purchased $137 in stamps, a total investment of $937 by this class.

TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF.

If you want a clear head and good digestion you must not let your bowels become clogged with poisonous waste from the body, as is always the case when you become constipated. Proper food, an abundance of water and plenty of outdoor exercise should keep your bowels regular. When that fails you should take Chamberlain's Tablets. These cause a gentle movement of the bowels and are easy and pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for Hawaii.—Adv.

SOLDIERS LOST IN SNOW ON MOUNTAIN

Goat Hunters Spend Three Days In Storm On Mauna Loa; But Return With Goats

Lost in a blinding snowstorm in the tropics is the rather unusual experience of Lieutenant J. W. Worthington and Private John M. Savarzo of Troop K, Fourth Cavalry, who returned to the military camp on the mountain Saturday morning after two days and three nights spent on the summit of Mauna Loa, snow-bound and lost. In their haversacks they took back with them to the camp three young goats.

Captain Hawkins, commanding the troop, and Captain T. B. Griffin, M. R. C., brought the story to Hilo when they came down from the mountain Saturday night, says the Hilo Post-Herald.

"Climbing to the summit of the mountain was one of the sports enjoyed by the officers and men earlier in the week," said Captain Hawkins, "and this in spite of the rain which fell continuously, unceasingly and all the time. Doctor Worthington and Savarzo, who is an Italian by birth and early training, which proved to be a mighty fortunate thing since he was used to snowstorms in the Alps, started on a hike up the mountain, Wednesday afternoon."

Trail Obliterated

As they expected to be out two or three nights, they took with them a plentiful supply of bedding, which proved to be another mighty good thing. It was raining when they started from the camp, and by the time they neared the top of Mauna Loa, it was snowing, not a few soft flakes, such as one might expect of a mountain snow in a balmy place like Hawaii, but a honest to goodness snowstorm that blew in their eyes, and swirled around their heads, and completely obliterated the trail—which isn't any too plain at its best.

"To make matters worse, the smoke and steam from the volcano up there got mixed up with the snow, and what with the three of them, the men could see nothing at all. They were not particularly worried, however, for they thought the storm would break in a little while, so they pitched their camp and made themselves comfortable for the night."

"Thursday the storm was still raging like a regular Nebraska blizzard, but it takes more than a snowstorm in the tropics to turn Doctor Worthington—the company's veterinarian—from his purpose, which happened to be goat hunting, so the two of them set out on a tramp on top of the mountain."

Reach Camp Finally

"That's how they lost the trail. The storm just kept right on all day Friday, and all that time, when it was light enough to see, they looked for that lost goat. Savarzo's early training came to their aid in a wonderful manner. Doctor Worthington said that without this man's knowledge of mountain climbing, the two would have perished. The storm was so bad that they never did find the trail, because the snow hid it, but they did get back to camp, safe and sound—and with the three goats."

Master Johnny Griffin, Captain Griffin's son who was the mascot of the party, immediately laid claim to one of the goats, and it will be his bedfellow if he has his way about it on the Mauna Kea on the trip back to Honolulu.

Doctor Worthington said that the ability of being snowbound in the Hawaiian Islands wasn't one of the pitfalls he had pointed out to him when he offered his services to the government.

PEARL HARBOR TO GO BACK TO OLD TIME

Orders will issue soon from the navy department at Washington to the commandant of the Pearl Harbor Naval Station to change the clock back to agree with those of the Territory and thereby eliminate the change recently made, under the "Daylight Saving" Act.

The chamber of commerce was informed yesterday by subgram from George McK. McClellan, its Washington representative, that this would be done, and soon. The information came as a result of a message sent last week by the chamber to Mr. McClellan asking him to visit the navy department and other offices and ascertain whether the change in time made at the Pearl Harbor Naval Station was not a mistake.

BOY IS INJURED WHEN DYNAMITE EXPLODES

John Mun, a part Hawaiian lad, twelve years old, residing at 1309 Houghtaling Road, was treated at the emergency hospital last night for a deep gash under the left eye, caused by an explosion of a dynamite cap. The boy found a number of dynamite caps yesterday afternoon and in attempting to explode one of them by striking it with a rock, his object was suddenly accomplished with the foregoing painful results.
